

NOAA's
National Weather Service
New York, NY

Weather Briefing

February 24, 2011
Prepared 2:30 pm

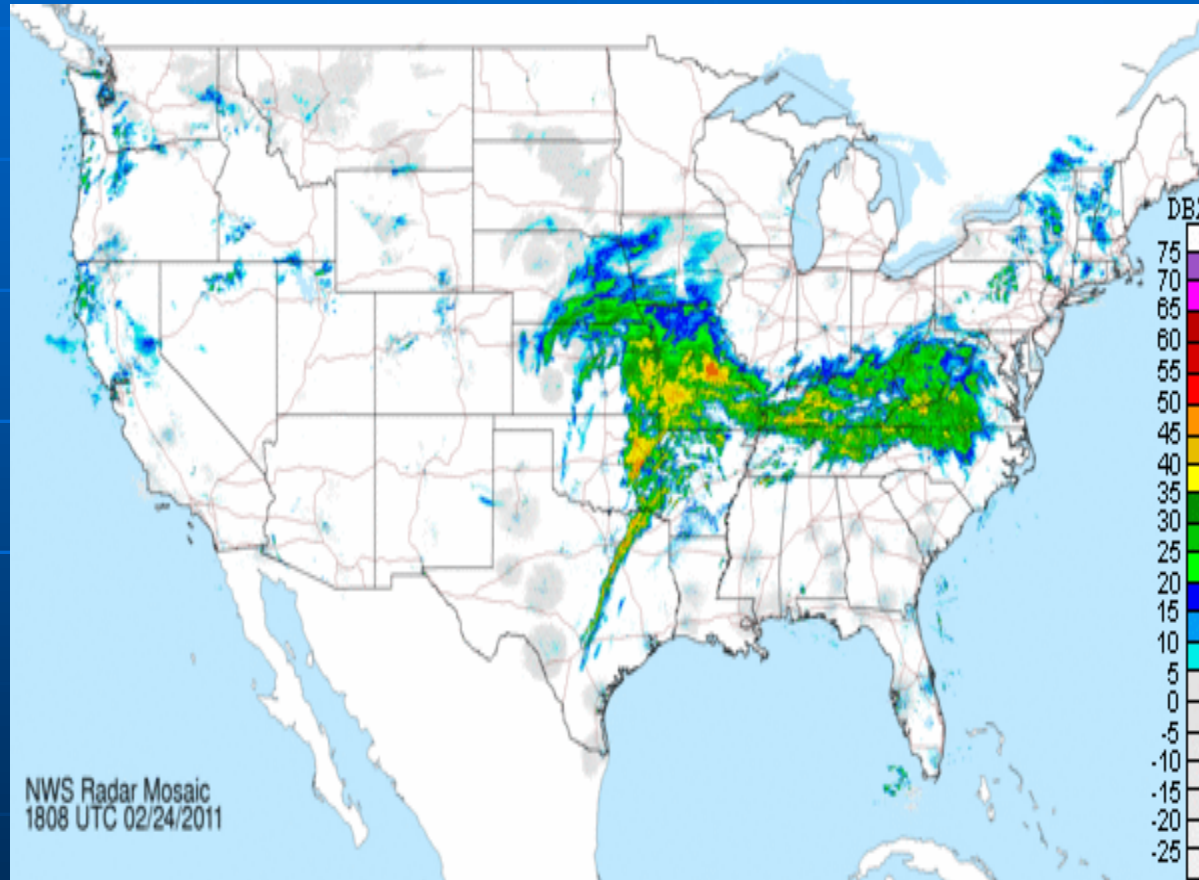

Surface Weather Map

Thursday, Feb 24 at 10 am

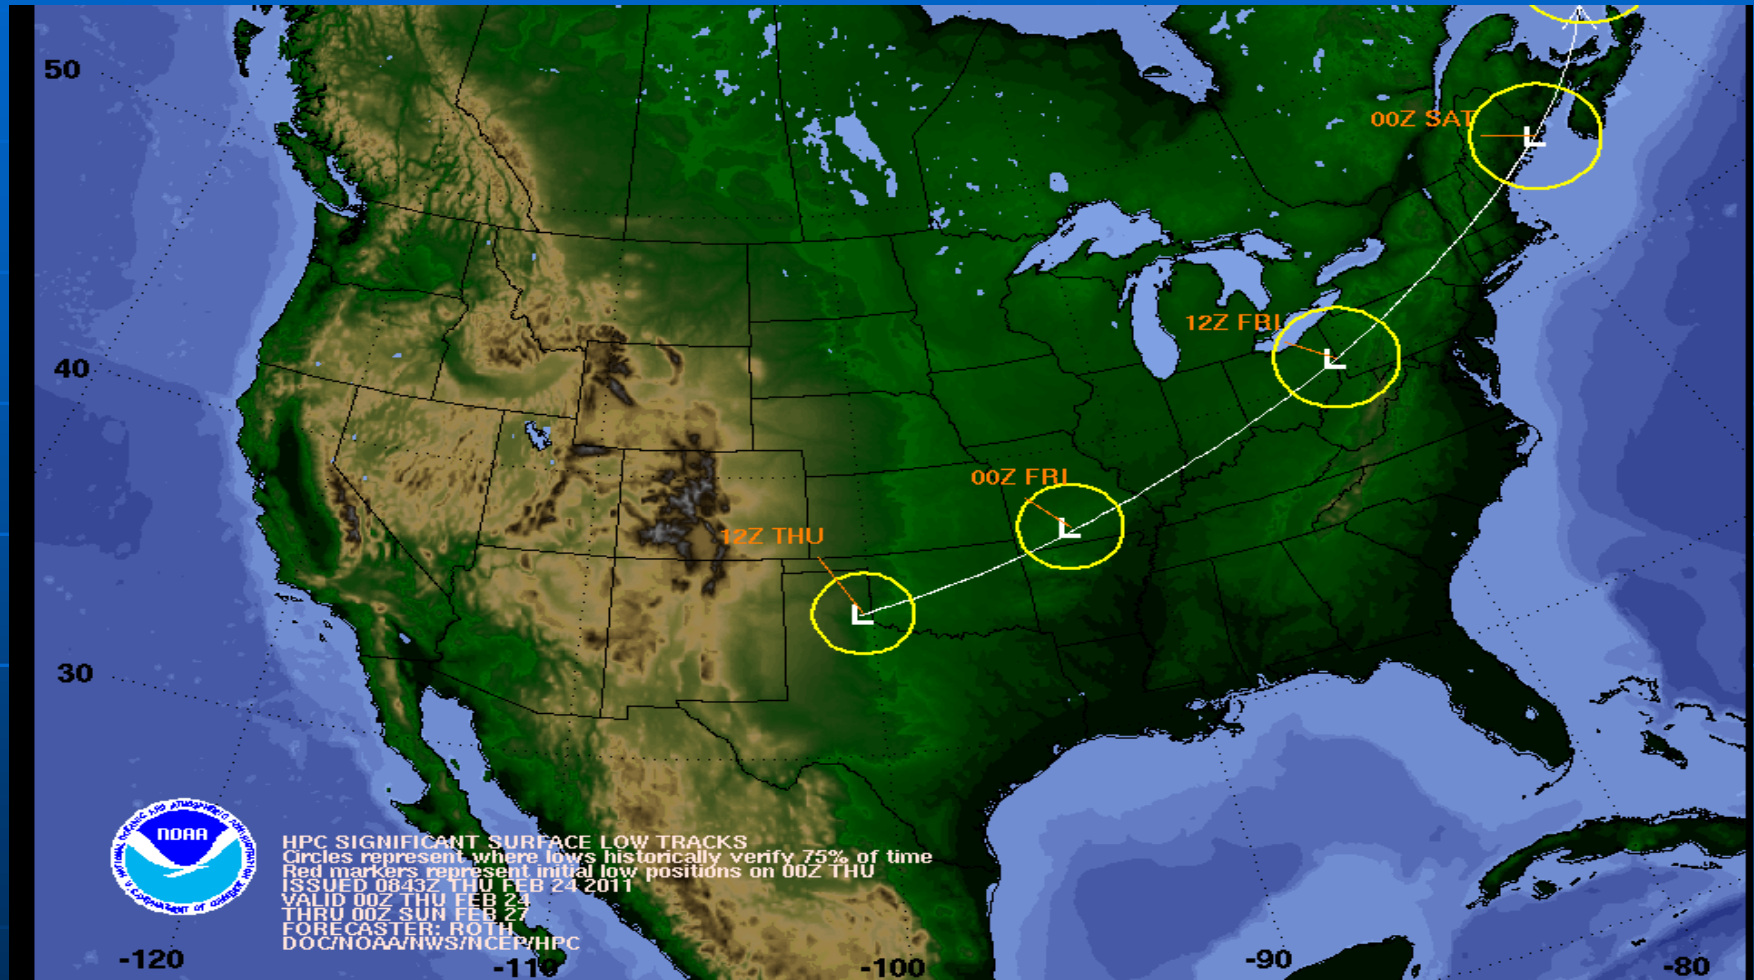

Weather Radar Image

Thursday, Feb 24 at 1:08 pm

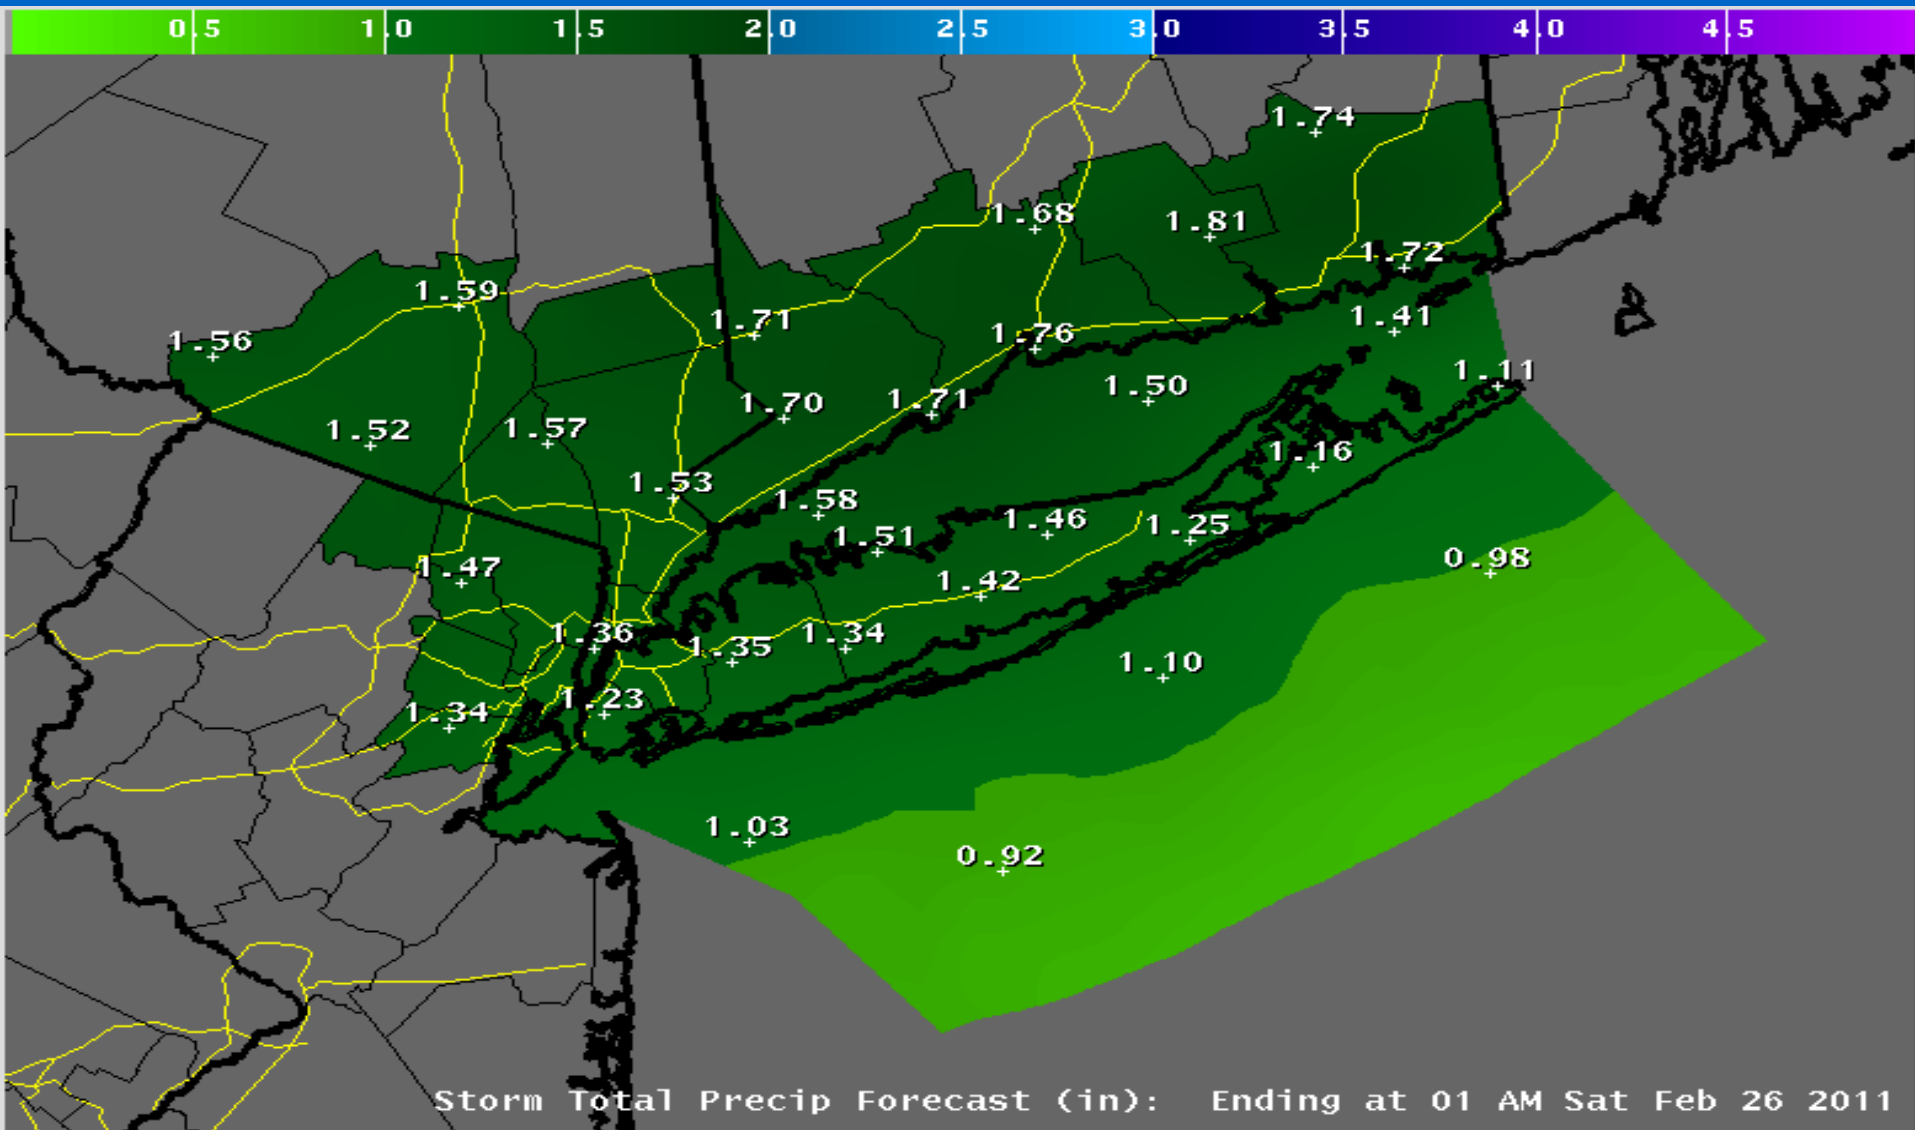

Latest Track Forecast

Forecast Storm Impacts

- Potential for Heavy Rain
 - Widespread Minor Urban Flooding Likely
 - Moderate Urban Flooding Possible
 - Minor Flooding of Quick Reacting Small Rivers, Streams, and Brooks Likely

Storm Total Rainfall Forecast

Maximum Hourly Rainfall Rates

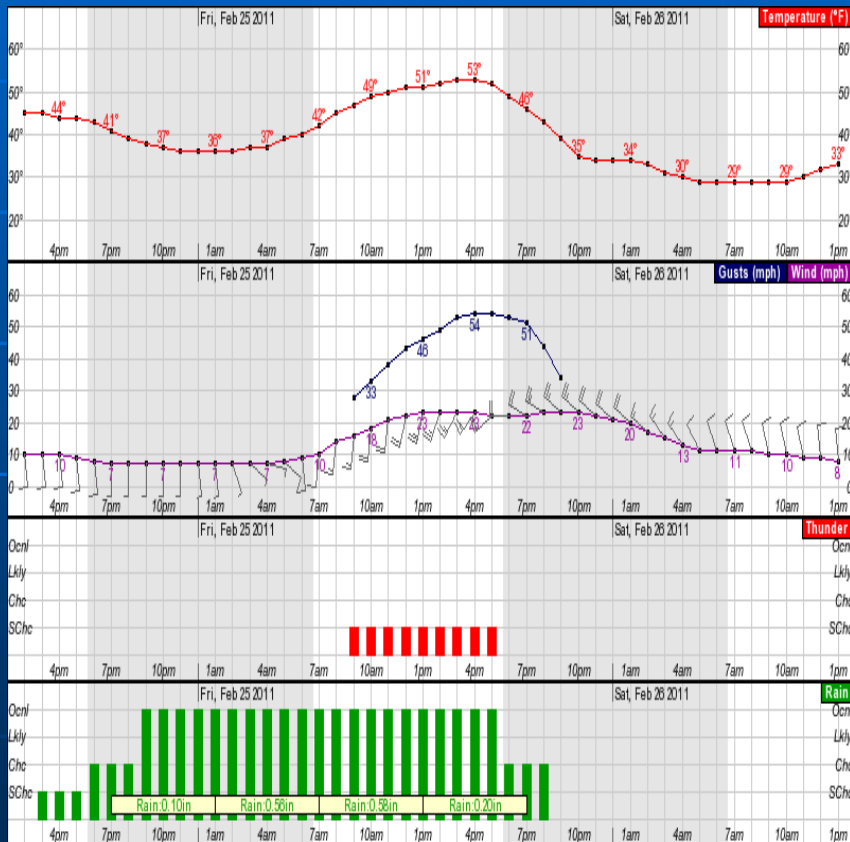

- Stratiform
 - Up to 0.25 inches per Hour
- Convective (Showers/Thunderstorms)
 - Up to 0.50 inches per Hour

Forecast Storm Impacts

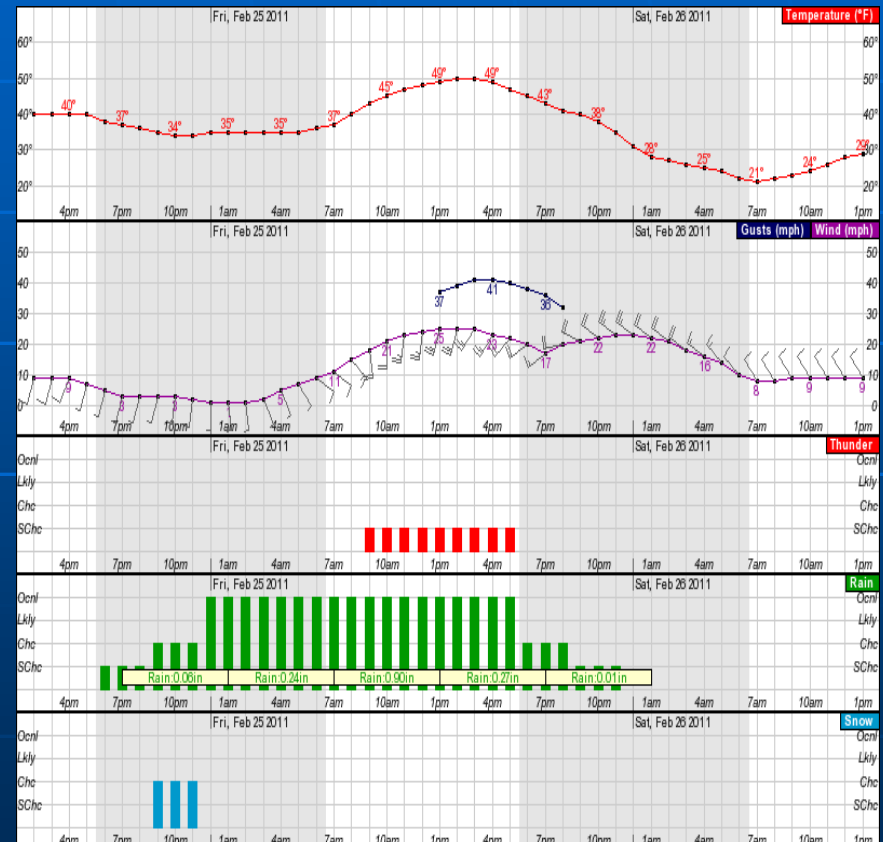

- Potential for Strong Winds
 - Mainly East of NYC Across Long Island and Coastal CT Friday Morning
S Winds 20-30 with Gusts 30-40 MPH
 - Everywhere for up to 6 Hours Following the Cold Front Friday Afternoon through Evening from West to East
NW 25-35 with Gusts 45-55 MPH

Timing the Impacts

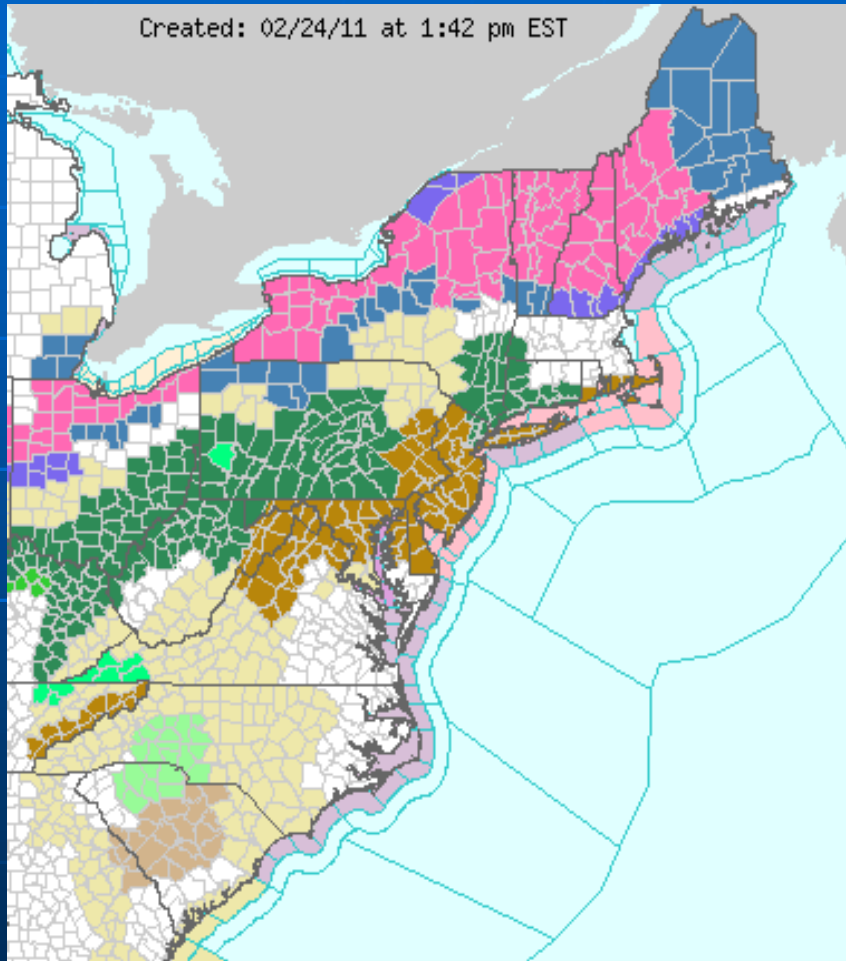

■ Central Park

■ Norwich, CT

Latest Watches

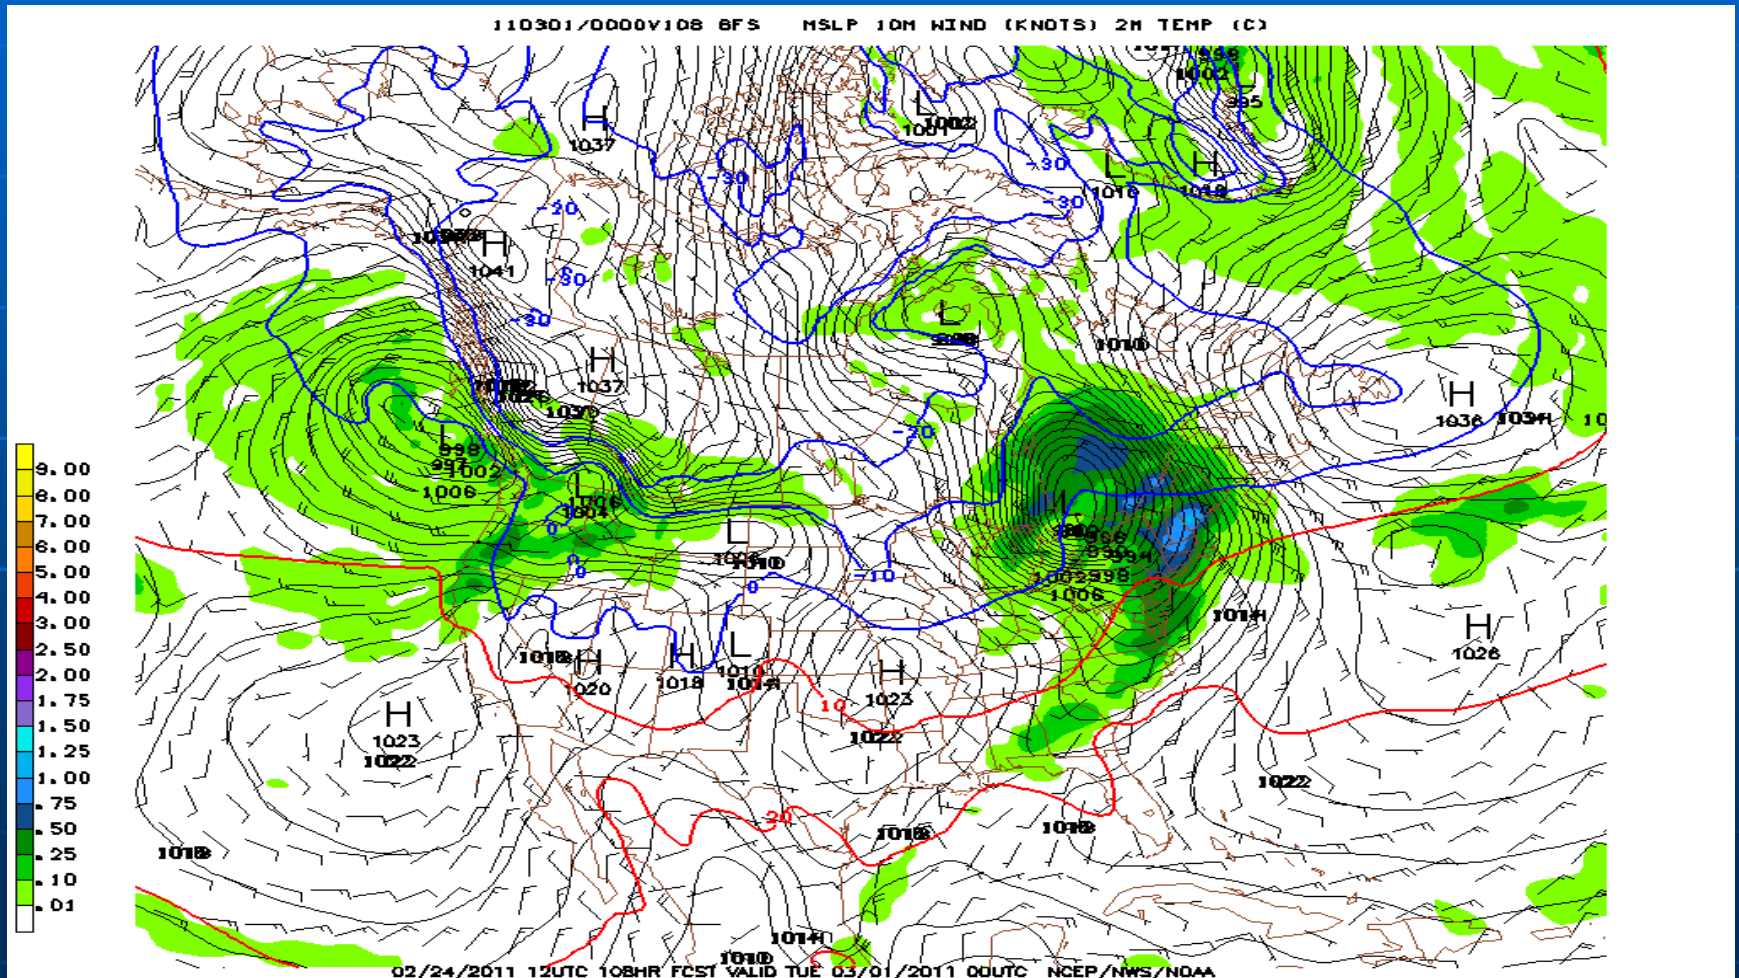

- High Wind Watch
Friday 10 am – 10 pm
- Flood Watch
7am Fri – 8 am Sat for
Northeast NJ, Lower
Hudson Valley, and
Southern CT

Light Precipitation Event

- Saturday Night into Sunday Night
- Along the Coast: Light Snow Changes to Light Rain
- Inland: Light Snow
- Snowfall: 1-2 inches Possible

Next Chance

Heavy Rain and Strong Winds
Monday through Monday Night

Contacts

- National Weather Service
New York, NY Office

<http://www.weather.gov/nyc>